Anti-Saloon Convention Under Complete Control of One Man.

VIEWS OPPOSED TO HIS HAD LITTLE VENTILATION

Condemnation of Newspapers Did Not Specify Those Under Ban—Incidents Little Different from Political.

(By Horace A. Hawkins.)

NORFOLK, VA., Feb. 12.—Whenever the Rev. James Cannon and the word the Anti-Saloon League went as he did here, there was the Rev. James Cannon dominated. The Power Policy of the Anti-Saloon League was exemplified in the convention, which met here yesterday, even when saying that it stood for "calm, quiet publicity," the members following many observations on the necessity and value of "publicity" with the statement that "discussion of other campaign questions is a league. Dr. Cannon was approved in what this Dr. Cannon didn't say was the majority.

Whenever there was started the word with his wireless telegraph, but the result was the same. Whenever there was a question put to the convention which the wireless makes the discovery of Marconi look like a joke, the question was answered with unanimity with which Dr. Cannon himself could have done it.

Those in touch with the local press, Newport News, The News Leader was the only newspaper in the city that did not surrender, would come out for publicity. But not this time. No one has been doubt about it. But when the convention adjourned it was the opinion of those who know it best that for the first time there was a change of sentiment in the view of Dr. Cannon was opposed.

ROOSEVELT ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Sketches the Early Life of the Union War President.

PARALLEL BETWEEN HIM AND WASHINGTON

Country Fortunate in Two Such Great Characters—Lincoln's Recognition of the South's Self-Sacrifice.

RODGENVILLE, KY., Feb. 12.—In his address here to-day on the occasion of the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, President Roosevelt, after sketching the early life of the great emancipator, said:

"The lessons of Lincoln's life and the measure of his greatness lie in the character of the struggle in which he took part, Washington and Lincoln. Without though they were different in externals, the Virginia patriot gentleman and the Kentucky backwoodsman, were in essence men of the same type. Both were alike in the great qualities which rendered each able in ruder service to do his full part in the world's work as well as in other ways of his generation could or did. Both were men of wide and far-seeing statesmanship, of deep and disinterested love of country, of sound common sense, of serene self-mastery, and of that fine courage which is entirely distinct from mere readiness to fight, which shows itself in the power of handling great masses of men, and of standing up against the fiercest opposition when once convinced that the cause was right. Both were men of high ambition, but of ambition which was based on a lofty sense of duty, of power of devotion to the public good, and of willingness to make sacrifice for the good of others. There was in each the deep religious feeling which showed itself in both by reverence for the Almighty and by the spirit of lofty charity toward all men, which made each speak and act without bitterness or rancor. Strictly though the problems of to-day differ from those which confronted Washington when he was the leader of the American people in the days of the Revolution, and those which confronted Lincoln when he was the leader of the American people in the days of the Civil war, there were certain great fundamental principles involved in the struggle for independence which Washington represented, and in the struggle for the preservation of the Union which Lincoln represented, which are essentially the same in kind as the principles involved in the struggle for righteousness which is being waged to-day.

LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

(Delivered at the dedication of the National Cemetery at Gettysburg Nov. 19, 1863.)

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great Civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world w ll little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and, that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth

MAY MANTON'S FASHION NOTES

EXQUISITE SILK FABRICS.

If indications are to be trusted the spring and the summer promise to be seasons of much silk and silk in shows in such infinite variety, in such unprecedented quantity, as to make it a question whether the fact does not mean anything else than silk. Of course, it does not do to say that there is some one material that is suited to almost every hair of the day, and the latest fashion must be garbed with regret. It is just what the most exquisite of the season's silks and peculiar charm of weight it makes a really ideal suiting material for warm weather use and it is shown in all the fashionable colors. Meantime, too, has taken up new forms and materials with which the silk familiar in Occasion silks is also in evidence. The most striking of the season's novelties are the "gripe" fine results known as the "gripe" has steadily gained in favor, however, the, until that in its extreme form it stands of no less than a dozen cords to the inch, the standing silk attractive and the complete costume will unquestionably make a feature of spring attire. This season, however, is not likely dated nor is it so stamped as to make it unsuitable for other seasons. Failures are the time supported, and as the fabric is soft and pliable it is especially suitable for graceful draperies.

While plain and moiré will not be lightly put aside, the latter has been given in this very fact is to be found the following: Moiré is not a novelty, but the moiré of the season is a novelty, and the great lavishly of time consent to wear moiré is the fact that it is the moiré of the figure, which is confessedly becoming and most shapely in the world.

are enthusiastic for and conservatives are lukewarm, but a large class of mild conservatives, who are willing to see what the season will bring forth, will be for the handsome silk or mohair fabrics to have her masquerading as queen. In the seventeenth century, when mental science has always held wide sway, when the long has been often stoutly invoked, both mechanically and otherwise, to ward off the ills of life, and in the gentlest of sympathy, the more consciously and scientifically is this power invoked, the more ready it seems for aid. It is needless to point out that the moiré is the silk of the moment, as above hints, and that modern dress adults might learn the first steps in their toilets from the fashion experiences set by ignorance in their nursery days.

Some interesting effects are produced treating every little stuffies almost with the moiré finish, and the moiré is also to be had in rich, soft qualities of the damask's instead of a small pattern, and it is to fill the wide of brocaded with grain. "What are delays?" one would ask in easy of accomplishing the moiré finish, and the answer is simple but exceedingly unfolded to her that the process is the only game that never pailed, and when the day for summer hat had passed and the hat was thrown grown, it was found that she had the moiré finish stock of "making both."

To "dim the gloss and make it soft" is a happy form of expression describing which we have all probably availed in our time, but the moiré finish is something more than merely "soft" and "dim" gloss, while some terrible sufferer panted to see it, and the spring moiré is "dimmed."

To win over the dramatic instinct of the moiré is a matter of both the moiré finish and the dulled, and quite as easy of accomplishment. The moiré finish is produced by a large hot roller, says Youth's Companion.

It is just as well to avoid one nursery fad of healthy, happy children, when all is said and done, and that is the fad of the nursery. Children will be born healthy and sane, and bumps and scratches and bruises will be given and received in the process. Behind the attitude the most of the fads of the nursery crumble, but it is well to avoid possible harm, and this is about care, and the active works perfectly, and is recommended for trial.

Hats.

Pot-shaped hats in stitched taffeta or fine leather are worn pushed down directly on the back of the head like a cabriolet. They have a turning-back crown and the front in the shape of detached flowers or a bow of ribbon. A pretty model in black taffeta has the crown and brim shown in stitchings of a contrasting material, or of white silk. The brim is wired to keep it even and every scrap at hair at the back, and the crown is trimmed with a bow of lace. They do not necessarily have strings.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Molly's Secret.

What do you think has happened?
Molly's got a secret to-day—
This February morning
Is as merry as merry can be—
He really, truly, brought me
A Merry Christmas,
It says outside, "For Molly."
And so I know it is for me.

Just look—what lovely wood!
And see the dear little men
Up high among the branches!
Why, there's a big bear, too!
And see that dear little girl!
The dearest little dear!
Perhaps she's come all the way
And see what pretty toys!

Who do you guess did and it?
Who thought of me so kind
And remembered me so well?
Looks as if it only says, "Me."
If you want to know, whisper:
I found it in a shop!
And put it in the corner
And sent it to myself!

Because, you see, I'm wicked.
A valentine so bad,
She thought, I'm only six years old.
Not one I've ever had.
But when I tell her whose me,
You'll see she'll send a pretty one—
Will bring next year a true one—
And maybe, maybe not.
—Lilla T. Zider, in Youth's Companion.

Making Valentines.

All the year we save up things
For making valentines, like rags,
Little bags called Cupids, too,
And hearts that we have cut from lace.

Then we take some paper white,
And we scissor it out right, and across
The top we write
Some verses we've made like this:
"To my sweetheart, with a kiss."

Now were ready to begin,
And we paste a Cupid in,
And perhaps a wreath and dove,
With a scroll which says, "True love."

We pass out from all the rest
One for mother that is best;
And we write, "Our hearts are true,
Dearest Valentine, to you."
—Lulie T. Curtis, in Youth's Companion.

AN ITCHING PALM

No Cure for It. Other Forms of Itching Preferable.

There is no cure for an itching palm—the money kind. Even poisons, the most deadly poisons, have no effect. But when it comes to eczema, the most annoying of itching skin troubles, poisons will stop the itching at once and cure the worst cases in a few days. So with hives, rash, rashes and itching piles, for which there is but one remedy, and that is poisons. Poisons will stop itching and cure them.

Poison comes in two-dollar jars, but Cuticura costs $1.50 and never in either one of the diseases mentioned. It runs up to $5 and upward. Cuticura does it for less.

Brotherhood, Limited.

I dreamed I served a term in jail
He swore I'd robbed the U. S. Mail.
And when I left the prison pale
I found my pretty sweetheart
What each and then I'll not relate—
Before I'll have my secret out
But over all there's rocked a load
Of sorrow and of doubt.

We held a meeting in the yard
The boys and I—all sworn to hard,
And each agreed to stand by well
To help the other for a spell;
To drink together, fight and fall
The law had set for us to sup,
And pledged us that we could
Our sorrows by a Brotherhood,
Which bound us each to be
Blanking under lock and key.
Then one by one the boys got days,
And months and years, and I was left
And some were in for twenty years,
And some up for life sentences,
And touching all the sentences,
I'd have to stay without release
Along near eighteen months apiece!
Then I got out, and went to work
To send me lines of Brotherhood.
I took a job—I'll not tell where—
In for six months so I've been told,
And I'll not tell what it was to do
To see what he got out of it,
In spite of all our agreement
So clear to Recitalist of mess,
I'll not tell what I found around
In fact I'll not tell anything.

What happened next I'm not aware;
Something struck me on the head
It waked me up, and I was glad
To escape from such a horrid nap
But as I thought upon the plan
Of Brotherhood, Limited, I began
To smell me, I guess it will not work
That thing he knows I will not work

The Glorified Black Costume.

There is a passion for black toilettes for both day and evening wear, but black filled quite out of the banal and glorified into radiance by fancy indigo, dainty bits of color, and constantly wrought into new forms by the ingenuity of the fair, quite without regard to the fact that it is the most difficult of all colors to handle successfully. The blending feature seen for sale has united in soft satin sizes about her face, nearly touching her eyebrows, by a band of gold and silver

Some Puzzles.

Having no information as to the personal feelings or political tendencies of Senator Thomas, of Lynchburg, we can not help being impressed by a coincidence described in the proceedings of the Anti-Saloon League convention at Norfolk. Senator Thomas made the most impassioned and fervid advocate of an immediate fight for State-wide prohibition. He came from Lynchburg, the home of the Hon. Carter Glass, the only man prominently spoken of for governor who has declared himself for State-wide prohibition. On the other hand, the leading force for local option was the Rev. James Cannon, Jr., who comes from the county of Nottoway, in which lives Judge William Hooper Mann, a candidate for governor who has declared for local option. Also Mr. Francis Lyle Jones, another friend and active associate. This may mean nothing, but to the astronomer and camel mind it suggests thoughts of political purposes even among the very saints of the earth.

Another idea somewhat puzzling to the correspondent could be found in the report of the committee, which was accepted, relative to a conference on the local option fee one year. All kinds of statistics, arguments and considerations are enlisted in the work of telling us how many dollars, pennies, nickels, quarters, lunacies, convicts and all kinds of undesirable persons are made by a saloon fee; and the net counties considerably can be left unstated to a white fee. But this prohibition question is one of morals and righteousness and goes to the root of morals; why should it be permitted to exist? The Anti-Saloon people propose, if they control, even if they do not own, a large majority of the voters of Virginia. Then being the case, why do they refuse to use their power to give us State-wide prohibition? From our standpoint their behind will be understood, but we can not consider the basis of their action from their standpoint.

If the Anti-Saloon League can enforce for State-wide prohibition it would have been almost accomplished either directly or indirectly in advance Mr. Glass. That gentleman, after months of hesitation, announced a few days before the meeting of the League that he would not be a candidate for governor, but with a declaration for State-wide prohibition that would have been about the only possible candidate. Profit the thought that the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League would permit a whole year of what they regard as a fight for morals and a fight for cause to continue for the advantage of one citizen as candidate for public office and side tracking of another. Yet if prohibition is good it is demanded by both morality and patriotism it is good now. If the State-wide traffic is a sin, it is imminent, is destructive of life and virtue, it should be instantly destroyed by the men who say they have the power to stop it.

The program, however, seems to be to take two chances. First the people of the State are to be given the opportunity to say whether or not they desire to continue the sale of liquor under license. If they decide by their votes that they want license to be continued, then the legislature or the general mass of voters by the county or ballot as to the fee, and that the cities shall not be allowed to make a local option fee and also a local prohibition, whether they desire it or not. The position also impresses us as slightly illogical. If we are for the local option here in Richmond this year, the right to vote for or against it we wish to do with the liquor business why should it be left to the people of the State if the majority of the voters of Richmond decide against the license and the sale of liquors their verdict will stand; but if the majority decide for license their verdict will be reversed. Yet it is easily local option. It is local option in the option of the people of a locality to say what they think is best for themselves—if the option is given to them by power; but if the decision is wrong local option disappears.

These things may be all very beautiful and lovely and pure, but to the plain ordinary thought of the average citizen they present some remarkable puzzles.

Scripture on the Cow.

Familiarity with the Scriptures is an admirable and delightful possession, but it does seem a pity that people cannot be taught to study the Bible with some discretion and good feeling. Most of we are familiar with those citizens whose favorite texts are King David's terrific denunciations of wicked persons in the first rose and the imprecations of the prophets against the unrighteous in the Lake Leeving. To citizens of this kind such texts are unfortunately comforts and are applied to all who offend them or who decides to believe or to do just as he, or she, does.

A curious illustration of this type is found in a communication printed a few days ago in the Covington Dispatch on the subject of cows running at large in the streets of the town. Some people are trying to have the streets made and gardens now used as cattle ranges reserved for their usual and legitimate purposes. The writer in the dispatch says of his advocate of the "cowow" side:

"I want to say, give me the cow for my fruit and let me have the flowers and vegetables. I want to see the cow grazing for myself and children, and let me take the family and live on the green and luscious grass. When we come to look such people as the writer of 'Cow for Me' in the Bible and read their expressions as they put them forth in the Scriptures, we will find that they are fools, and I'm not a smoker and one God hath said in His written word, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn, and all the proud, yea, and the fools, and the wicked, and the sinners and that is the reason why they will come to all time to and loves them neither fear nor forever. He is not a fool, but he is not. 'There is one law given who is the Lord God of Israel, and Moses who got it from God, and that is the law which we have to live by.'

"Now, I find that God gave us the cow for our use, the majority of the people to-day are poor and needy; they are not rich enough to own cows. Those are the members, who have the possession of the cows, and they are the ones who are the fools and wicked, and sinners, and wicked, they have to go. It is attended by the Lord God, and I am not afraid to say what. We have the liberty to obey the Lord God, and I am not afraid to say it.

All this is because some well-to-do people have cows to keep in and flowers and gardens in which he takes some pride and which, being his own property, he prefers to have maintained for his own use and enjoyment, and because the cow owner insists that he has the right to graze his cows on the land bought and paid for by somebody else.

It is a remarkable, but not an unusual perversion of the Scriptures.

Dissipated Oysters.

Some time ago, discussing the problem of how to get a reasonable amount of oysters near to ensure to a great measure the possibilities of success, the suggestion being among the best customers for oysters, the people of Richmond, which, by the oyster is a creature of dissipated habits, and must be treated accordingly. This fear is sadly confirmed by a local firm in the Fredericksburg Free Lances of yesterday:

Captain T. I. Nicholls, of Mitchell's, has a novel sign in front of his store, a cluster of oysters, with numbered stalks, on which is printed: "Guess the number of oysters in the cluster and win a prize."

This indicates that with the continued spread of prohibition the oyster business will be destroyed at both ends. If we have no saloons we will have no men who merely exercised their intellects and greatly increased the oyster business by their drinking in bank nets, closing their eyes and swallowing whole the oysters as they came.

The passing of the building and its infrequent use are practical reasons why the oyster business will be destroyed by prohibition.

In the minds of all, the present business of the oyster is doomed. Let us have prohibition.

Our Bad Interest Laws.

Editor The News Leader:

Among the many amendments of needlessness for the legislature, I see one of Senator Barney's, forcing the rate of interest down to 6 per cent. As a citizen with local interested, I would say that it would be a good thing for the State.

Why should the State of Virginia compel its citizens to pay 6 per cent. for money, when they can get it in other States for 4 per cent.? Why should not the citizens of Virginia have the same privileges as the citizens of other States?

Why should not the State favor the present and future growth of Richmond, and encourage capitalists to invest their money here? Why should not the State favor the present and future growth of Richmond, and encourage capitalists to invest their money here? Why should not the State favor the present and future growth of Richmond, and encourage capitalists to invest their money here?

Murphy, Owner of the Cubs, Denies Troublous Charge That He Called His Team Manager, Chance, a Fathead.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—President Murphy, of the Cubs, is going to stir up a little excitement himself at the coming meeting of the National League.

He announced yesterday that he would demand that the umpire baiting rule, which was adopted in New York at the last meeting, and which has been allowed to die since then by the committee having it in charge, be thrashed out and given to the public.

"It does not make a particle of difference whether the guilty persons are convicted in a court of law or not," he said.

"I did not call Frank Chance a fathead," and I would like to deny that report on emphatically as possible. I could be very foolish to call a man who has won the championship for me twice consecutively, and who threw his local League into a fathead.

"I will give the Cubs $10,000 or dog biting duty, if I have announced that I am going to do so, and I will say so."

With the national commission lined up against the rule, and the New York baseball club, four are considering what a nuisance of the merry war will be, Murphy's demand may be a perennial and with the owner of the Chicago National League club, Garry Herrmann and Ban Johnson have been drawn in with very fruitless

JOCKEY CLUB HESITATES TO ANNOUNCE ANY DATES

Saratoga Expects to Have Its Usual Meeting in August.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The elements of the Jockey Club took no action at their meeting today that will affect in the slightest degree the racing season of the coming season. It is understood that the Jockey Club will probably not announce until the status of racing is more settled. Recently closed as it is, the fact that the latter courts no opposite new pending bills, it is expected that the date of the racing season is likely to be fixed not long before May.

The board of directors of the Saratoga Racing Association yesterday elected H. K. Pomeroy, Jr., president, to succeed Francis A. Shaw, resigned, and elected Henry Alexander, vice-president, in place of Henry Payne Whitney, who resigned, because, as he said, he would spend little time at the Saratoga meeting this year, whereas he has remained the entire time in the past. Alexander is also president and treasurer. Mr. Alexander said that the Drays were newly elected members of the executive committee.

The association will ask for the usual racing dates during August at Saratoga.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS ARE AVERSE TO SPECIAL TAX

Problem Raised by Virginia Good Roads Associations is Being Worked Out in Maryland—Oyster Leases May Pay for State Highways.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12.—Automobilists would not be more partisan to greater excellent sense and more willingness to pay new bill framed by Comptroller Gordon Swann, and which the commission appointed by the governor is now considering.

It was decided to have a committee appointed by the Automobile Club of Maryland and another named by the Federal and Chesapeake Parody confer with the commission, with the view of harmonizing their differences, and then agree upon a bill which would meet generally with approval.

The official objection raised was the proposed high license tax on machines, which would be greatly in excess of the amount now paid. It was claimed by the automobilists that the proposed bill would practically prohibit motoring, that the tax was unfair, because it was based on value, besides it was really a duplex tax. The automobilists were already taxed as property, and the license fee proposed, from which there was no exemption, would be imposed on additional burden. All agreed that willingness to pay a license, but not unless they are convinced it would be used for purposes.

The arguments from the other side were to the effect that as it was to the advantage of the automobilists to have good roads, they should gladly contribute toward their maintenance.

George Linthicum, brought this in the near future the revenue derived from the license fee would be so great that the building of roads would be practicable, and the tax could then be abolished. Automobile is now in the interest of the automobilists to help the State, and in return the State would exempt them from taxation.

Dr. Rowe said that with a personal tax of $3 a year on a $1,000 car, which is now paid, and an additional special tax of $10 a year, the owner of a car valued at $1,000 would be taxed $13 a year, or $5 or $10 every year. This would prove a serious detrimental to the business in the State, and would in the end cost the State more money, inasmuch as a few would ultimately aggregate more on many cars than the present tax on a few cars.

Others present joined in the argument that followed, a number of questions being asked with reference to the provisions of the bill.

Mr. Talbot finally said a copy of the measure would be sent out to all automobilists whose views could be ascertained and after a meeting a committee would be appointed to confer further with the commission. Dr. Linthicum and other physicians asked that their gentlemen be recognized also, as the doctors were using the machines now. This was agreeable to all concerned.

It is more than likely that a bill will be introduced at Annapolis, but there is no opposition now to say that the proposed scheme except that of taxation and a few minor requirements.

WASHINGTON AND LEE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Strong List They are Going Up Against, But Team Good.

LEXINGTON, Feb. 12.—(Special.)—The Washington and Lee football team for 1909, as expected by rumors, is today announcing his schedule for the season and fully satisfactory.

Washington and Lee should play an unusually strong team. Bucknell, a formidable rival, next season. Bucknell, half-back for the past two years, is one of the best players in the state, and he carves out his own interests for more than the team amounted to.

Dr. Rowe said that with a personal tax of $3 a year on a $1,000 car, which is now paid, and an additional special tax of $10 a year, the owner of a car valued at $1,000 would be taxed $13 a year, or $5 or $10 every year. The Fatal Wooing.

"I love," remarked a troubadour,
"A maid in whom I sing
From dawn of day till night is o'er,
But she's the roughest thing."

"When I beseech her latter hand
Her oat, e-sser mistreiny
His sorry pogeb dermvand,
Prepostub kriks at me!

"And yesterday I did—I beat I sing
The best of all my stock,
She beheaved—I apologized—and—Bang!
She smashed me with a cork!

"The words are not adventitious thoughts
That in the rime I sense,
But, ah! such plans spell no nought,
I cannot go away!

"In fact, I'm off, I must away,
I'll not be treated so!
Though deadly, murderous she be,
My heart is much my bow.

"For—ah—I fear me much that she
Is no better gal than I,
Will do no more for injury,
Or, deliver—that I'll try.

"Yet, yet—" Oh send that lovelorn wight
To some far, distant clime,
And his preposthumous rare flights—
The king cannot stand time.

IN THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Church Problems, Old and New.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for Feb. 14 is, "The Apostles Imprisoned," Acts v., 17-42.

Man of Famous Patience.

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer-Meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies—Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Union, Epworth League, etc., for Feb. 14, "Life lessons for me from the book of Job," Job xiii., 1-6, 10-17.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS

Times have changed since the apostles went to jail for beating the Name. In this day of grace, the policeman is the only one who enforces the prohibition of mere orderly prayer without. They arrest from the back streets, but not from the fashionable and favored halls that advertise. They haled the apostles before the Sanhedrin for preaching Christ crucified; we indorse the business of their opposition and consecration on the theory that in being studied this week by the Sunday-schools all the outward opposition has served to mollify the body of Christ, and to identify their doctrine with their deeds.

Now the church's problems chiefly arise from within. They are not reaching down to her own wealth, and social standing, and intrenched privilege, for persecution, and worldliness, and that only, as the apostles found it, is the soil in which the church comes here to meet subject and more difficult foes than the raging, jealous Pharisees are since the Sanhedrin left shortly after Pentecost.

Hence the modern apostle must oppose the spirit of worldliness in the body of the church to the end of the chapter. Perhaps it is a tribute to her advanced powers that these same difficulties and problems of social life are the latter day, rather than the primitive, that engage the attention of the cleverest church workers.

WHEN GOOD MEN GROW JEALOUS.

Who every time and after the stories of the new outcome of to-day's paper, the vitriolic debate between Peter and Stephen. The most remarkable thing about the controversy is that it occurred among the best Christian spirits of the time, the humble Galilean band who were his kindred of the new Israel. Neither party to the debate is to be found guilty of the slightest unworthy motive. A leader in religious politics, to-day, would be in the siege with one of his partisans who prompted by jealousy, or ambition, or love of power, or personal pique, or party spirit, or sectarianism, or any of those distinguishable devices of the law which the flesh has invented, endeavor to rouse them to violence in the name of God. But we do not put in bond the followers of Jesus.

THE DOORS ARE VAIN.

Nor are the doors of Acts open. They come, in historic instances, the great the persecuting power of the world is overcome; but the track which they have left is the track of blood, and the way which they open is the way of martyrdom. Due to overaction in politics and malice in the party spirit, even as ambition itself is fleeting to-day. Whoever goes to the front in religious politics, to-day, is the subject of criticism and suspicion. Whoever stands where other names is the object of attack. Whoever talks such a hall, or has an impressive personality is the object of the suspicion of all who are jealous to the cause of truth.

Peter and John, in the temple, were the objects of the suspicion of the chief priests of the system of the Temple, the doors of which were open to receive the gift of the lame. They were in the temple, and were arrested for preaching the resurrection of Jesus, and of course, there was nothing else. "Oh," said the world, "that's the trouble in the church of Christ and till the people all you have to do is to preach the New Life" course, this was striking repeated arrest, and the Sanhedrin, which was the court of the church, was constantly confronted with the very boldness at the step meant to be the object of its fear. Ignorant men were said to hear of Life, and other men, who were not ignorant, but unschooling, nothing of the kind, were the object of the very life of the interior doctrine, and of course, they, their Good News.

THE SACRED SACRIFICE.

Peter saw a Doubtful preaching upon the Sanhedrin, and the Sanhedrin saw a Doubtful preaching upon Peter, and Stephen who was constantly looking over his shoulder for disciplinary purposes. Now I do suppose that that is the way the apostles would have looked upon the matter every moment he was in some one way or another, and that he was looked upon by their associates, as well as by the prospect of added punishment? Assuredly that is the way it was. The further thought to the authorities, as expressed was that the apostles were in their own court of law, and that they were under their own terms those high priests and elders and scribes. Peter, they did send to arrest the apostles, but they appointed themselves to the court and that it was to be done quietly and with the consent of the people. Of course the business was done in a hurry, and Peter. Pompous have a way occasionally of rising up in their own championship of truth and free speech. Subsequently to the interview with the arrested apostles there is a unselfishness and thankfulness which is not to be found in the Sanhedrin. But that must come. It is a matter of, "You have actually flooded Jerusalem with your teaching, and you are trying to make us responsible for the death of the Nazarene."

Peter replies in the utmost independence of the apostles, as they looked upon the Sanhedrin and Peter, with his old hatred shame: "We must obey God rather than men. The God of our ancestors has raised Jesus from the grave, whom you murdered by hanging Him on a tree." It was a grim confession of the personal opposite to the Christian life, but it is not in fact, the latter had in their hearts a spirit of love and forgiveness, and ecclesiastical potentates were utterly without it.

THE SPIRIT OF JESUS.

Sometimes men just belabor out of a person's life or death, as full that he cannot restrain himself from speech. Stephen is one of the stories, tells how the Sanhedrin cared but at last been accepted by the Christian world. Nevertheless he is not there half-overlooked because of his splendid martyrdom. It is the spirit of Jesus, and only Jesus, that is to be found in all women. I don't know who Peter was, but I just want to tell you that Gamaliel will have me.

That is a lover to whom everybody's heart warms. And the same true of Stephen. He was not represented as condemned but overborne as that, in the case of the disciples, is dead all Jerusalem, is the subject that the world respects and sanctifies. The one supreme business in life of these early Christian men and women was to imbue over and over the story of the Master. They were not in the habit of opinion or at labor, or before a legal tribunal or a multitude of the populace, there sprang to their lips the Good News of the Crucified, which is the heart of the Gospel of Acts.

Another significant point in his answer at the Sanhedrin, as this message: "We are witnesses to the truth of this, and so is the Holy Spirit!" That self-confidence, he proclaimed the resurrection of Jesus. The Christian life is not a matter of one position with the Spirit of God in the consciousness. It is not, as some one has said that every Christian is a missionary, to tell the Good News is a consciousness with Christ, and a co-witness with the spirit. That should be dignity enough for any one, and enough for the church, and it is the only dignity that we can lay claim to as high privilege.

Peter's answer to the high priest and the world became that in its entire realm of thought and action. It is the spirit that every man owes the inflexed truth he is to be true to the Spirit of God, and to follow his own counsel.

SOME ANGRY JUDGES.

Sometimes a truth breaks hearts, or agitates them, but sometimes it only hardens them. It is the spirit of the Sanhedrin-grave fruitless upon hearing the truth. They were angry and took counsel to kill the apostles, as they were before put to death his Master.

Gamaliel, who agreed a test and uttered a warning and set counsel which is to be said: "Let them alone—for if these devices or this work is of men, it will come to nothing, but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them; lest you be found to be fighting against God."

Gamaliel's counsel was not wise, but if they are at divine origin, you will not overthrow them. That is the way Christianity has stood. The Sanhedrin could not overthrow it, and it has not overthrown the Sanhedrin. He was all in the Sanhedrin, and he was a member of Bethany Synagogue.

The apostles were flagellated aided back them to beaten but they did remember the words of Jesus, and they rejoiced that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name. So he can be happy, peaceful and successful. Peter's answer to the Sanhedrin, the heart or in open conflict, arrayed against the world, is the answer that certain in every Persecution is not unfrequently fruiting to the church. Stephen and the apostles changed them, because they were afraid. The apostles, when they were put in the secret chamber, can but entitled, herding together, and praying that the Spirit of Jehovah, abides through all storm and stress.

Saints was right in his proposition that the church was a spiritual power, but he erred not only to consider their effort to be a spiritual power, but to be the result of godliness are the primary goal of the Christian life. The Spirit of God must be assured, and that once has been accomplished, the church is ready for the life of persons too selfish or cynical to be interested in the church. Peter's answer to the Sanhedrin is interesting because it. To them it means nothing that Jesus was dead, and that the apostles had all for his sake, and that the resurrection was a fact. To them it was a fable, else why not tell what how' is beyond the power of explanation.

Job had riches, but riches did not have Job. Job had riches.

Real gold, in metal or in character, is not to be had for nothing.

Not all sorrow is due to sin, but all sin leads to sorrow.

God's way is not of finding out, except when we have walked with him in the light of his revelation.

There is always an afterward. The bitterness passes, but it is remembered. Sorrow is a great teacher.

Job's adversities were multiplied and intensified by the counsel of his friends were the friends who professed to know all about the reason for them.

No trouble is too vast to bear, if one is assured that it is God's sending.

Stray judgments upon other persons and their affairs proved to be useless and discreditable in the case of Job's friends. They were found to be miserable comforters to anything else. It is always well to remember that the judgments of others are his problems so simple as our own. Job's friends were not wise enough to understand the mysteries of God's providence and science. Every man's perplexities are his own, and no one else's. Job's friends still not serve The best help that we can give to others is to point them to God, and to encourage them to trust in the secrets of his summer, and a God who is faithful.

The professional adviser-given with his opinion and ready to give it—is generally one of the most aggravating consolers.

Job could lose all he possessed, and still be rich in character, but he could not let his faith and love and other material possessions go without impoverishing. Could withstand all kinds of adversity, but could not let his faith be shaken.

"I matters not how strait the gate, How charged with punishments the scroll,

I am the master of my fate,

I am the captain of my soul."

God's beings, fortune, and the world's opinion are all of a loose-jointed friendship. Character is the only thing that is real. Therefore he has become one of the immortal souls of the world because he is the character and comforter of the afflicted and the friend of God.

The blessing of God's favors usually comes after the trial of faith. It is not even though there be a halting in the way, and the expression of inborn zeal of trust of Jehovah, abides through all storm and stress.

Satan was right in his proposition that God's servants would not serve for naught. Faith is an unworthy servant. But he was wrong in his implication that the fruits of godliness are the primary goal of the Christian life. The Spirit of God must be assured, and that once has been accomplished, the church is ready for the life of persons too selfish or cynical to be interested in the church. Peter's answer to the Sanhedrin is interesting because it. To them it means nothing that Jesus was dead, and that the apostles had all for his sake, and that the resurrection was a fact. To them it was a fable, else why not tell what how' is beyond the power of explanation.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 14

THE APOSTLE IMPRISONED.

ACTS V: 17-21.

BY REV. J. E. GILBERT, D. D., Secretary American Society of Religious Education.

CONVENT—Many days may have elapsed, but some event must be enlisted, between the death of Ananias, as recorded in the last lesson, and the events of today's lesson. Luke does not give us any verses to make general reference to what has transpired during the time. The apostles wrought signs and wonders, and gained favor from the people. Multitudes were added to the church of men and women, were added by the Lord. Many sick were healed, as general was the faith in the apostles, that the sick were brought and laid in the street where the shadow of Peter in passing might fall on them. To us this would seem a wonderful time of revival and progress, but there were those who were jealous to behold. Intelligence of these seven days of revival, as well as the cause of the gathering crowds, was brought to the high priest, chief priests, and elders, and friends to Jerusalem. During all the days of the revival, and during the days of these events, there was no more remarkable display of the power of God in relieving the afflicted than in the case of Peter.

ARRESTED—The popularity gained by the apostles aroused the envy of the high priest and his party. The high priest and their party were the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection, the existence of angels and spirits, and of spiritual existence (Matt. xxii: 23; Acts xxiii: 8). They were cold and formal in their religion, and were probably held aside as the apostles and sent them to the public prison. The high priest arrested Peter and John preaching the resurrection of Jesus. They were angry, and probably intended to punish them severely by imprisonment, and then by threatening. But the fact that they had not continued their obnoxious teaching, but still in the temple, and were arrested while there gaining the hearts of the people, was a great provocation to them. They were also his better for the apostles, and under the grounding of the same spirit which had put Jesus to death. They were cruelly evil. It was every that perpetrated through ignorance, and that was the cause of their sin. They were also under the cold and merciless ecclesiastical rule of Annas (Acts iv: 6), and Caiaphas, who were also Sadducees, and who had probably held hands on the apostles and sent them to prison. They were also under the influence of Satan, who was the prince of darkness, in whose kingdom there is no light.

DELIVERED—The angel of the Lord came by night and opened the doors of the prison and brought the apostles out from their confinement. The rulers sought to find them in the prison, but found them not. They were afterward by one of their number, when they were found in the temple, in the exercise of his ministry. When brought before the council, they were charged with the resurrection and with their deliverance (Rom. xiii: 3). Numerous miracles of deliverance are recorded in the courage the apostles. They must have been filled with the Holy Spirit, and with the power of God, to have such courage. The people in the streets (Deut. xxi: 2), and the high priest and council (Matt. xxvi: 3) were probably there. Acting in the temple, and in the streets, they were not being confined. The carpet of the Lord was upon them, and they were in the path of duty. Their faith in the power of God was simple and He restored to them their liberty. They were not only in the temple, the very service for which they were arrested.

ASSEMBLED—The apostles, shrewd, bold, and fearless, were arrested and brought before the council. The council was convened in the presidency of the high priest, and was the highest court of the courts near the temple building. The high priest was probably the president of the council convened in the residence of Caiaphas (Matt. xxvi: 3). The whole council was specially summoned. They were the highest authority in the nation, and there and cleared the spirit of the apostles' teaching. The council was probably composed of seventy members, and a majority of Sadducees. All these were present (Acts iv: 5). Gamaliel was probably the 23-28) adherents. The same power controlled the council that had put Jesus to death. Christ's disciples were brought before the council at the rise of 31 per cent, with the same charge that had been made to the apostles (Acts iv: 18). Probably the same members be under the same duty of the year.

Best Recipe for Catarrh

The hottest treatment of catarrh is through the blood. It kills disease germs. The one-hour pill good whether, and at the same time builds up the blood, raises Tarlo compound, which can be procured of any druggist for 50 cents, and destroys catarrh and heals the inflamed tissues, forming an august body of pure blood, which carries health and strength and restores to their places, as officer of the body, all the organs that suffer from the poison.

Consumption is a short time the most dangerous and fatal disease of the human report. They feel gone to the prison. They are weak, nervous, and nervous. Everything was in its usual condition, and nothing indicated that anyone was in danger. Their hearts were very weak, and their nerves were very nervous. They were very nervous, expecting to receive the attendant of the day. They were in a state of fear, but to their amazement the apostles were not there. They were not in the prison cells, nor in the corridors, nailing and guarding the doors. The night watchmen reported that they found the doors of the prison closed with all security, and they sat in silence, listening to the voices of the prisoners within, evidently unconscious of their deliverance. Probably they forgive were not in the prison at all, but had been removed by night, and that was the reason why they found the doors closed and would be the outcome.

DISCOMFITED—The uncomfortable condition of the council was relieved somewhat by the announcement that the apostles were in the temple, and were teaching. A little discomfiting stood the apostles fulfilling the charge of the angel to go and speak in the temple all the words of this life. The high court of the nation sent for the apostles, and they were brought. They were probably brought to the council chamber, and Divinely delivered and sustained in the midst of the council, and were probably constituted prosecutors! It is to be noted that the apostles were not afraid to speak in the temple. The high priest and his associates must have filled the midst of the council with their fears and bewilderment! If prison walls and Heaven had been opened to release the apostles for Jesus; if supernatural standards had been set aside to release them; if the power of God had been exerted to protect the apostles again, and the officers of the law had been overpowered, the terror of the people no violence was used, and the apostles were in the temple, they was offered.

REBUKED—The apostles maintained their position in the presence of the council. Probably they were less excited than the members of the council. What had occurred was sufficient to fill the council with fear, and to overbear the silence, and the power of God was upon the apostles. Even with all the power of the high priest, and the forces only—they had preached Jesus. Here they were by the side of the very council that had previously delivered, restraining them from preaching, and they were preaching in the temple, and in the streets! "Ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine," was the high priest's vailing the actions of the prosecution. "Ye intend to bring this man's blood upon us." The church declared the right of God to rule, and the apostles declared the right of God to rule, and the apostles declared the right for religious liberty. The high priest closed by saying that the apostles intended to bring the blood of Jesus upon them, that is to hold them responsible in the sight of God and man for the death of Jesus. Probably they did think it; but the apostles made reply in a brief, but manly way (verses 29-32). "We ought to obey God rather than men," they said, denying the jurisdiction of the council, and stating the keynote for the after centuries of liberty of thought and action. "We are witnesses" concerning Jesus. Backed up by God, sustained by the Jews, He had been exalted Prince and Saviour. In connection this was what the apostles had been doing in the temple, and in the city's homes. Looking during the whole verses to make general reference to what had transpired during the time. The apostles wrought signs and wonders, and gained favor from the people. Multitudes were added to the church of men and women, were added by the Lord. Many sick were healed, as general was the faith in the apostles, that the sick were brought and laid in the street where the shadow of Peter in passing might fall on them. Senator Lodge's resolution was referred to the committee on rules, and it is probable that the committee will report it favorably. It is intended that the senate shall be subject to debate, and that the previous question shall not be applied. It is not likely that any other rules will be changed.

Senator Gary knows how far a line from the senate floor to make an attack on the Republican caucus, and he probably does not want to get even with him by the caucus. He is a member of the committee on immigration.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 12.—Lincoln's anniversary celebrations were held to-night by negroes throughout the city. Addresses were delivered by prominent negroes and the day was observed as a holiday. Governor Blanchard will be another feature of the report. The object of this plan has been to banish from the ingredients, which formula are prepared, all drugs and other harmful substances, and to produce a pure bread, there again each of those and parents of bread, and to produce more, two large ovens, two bay loaves, three covered pans and one oven, which will sell and serve to taste.

THIS MODEL IN BLACK VOILE, $8.75.

Rich-Looking Voiles, Dressy Panamas, Strictly High-Class Garments at Moderate Prices

Great strong lines of these deservedly popular spring and summer garments are now ready for your choosing. Judging from the distinguished character and style of these Skirts, one would easily think that in these had been reached the climax of tailoring skill. The assemblage is most complete in all the little details that go so far toward satisfying the tastes of good dressers and making buying a pleasure.

Dress Skirts of Black and Colored Panamas and Voiles—we doubt if so broad and extensive a showing was ever witnessed in a Richmond shop at one time; and certainly no prices could be fairer than these:

New Panama SKIRTS

At $5.00 Dress Skirts made of very fine panama, small black check, nicely trimmed or in plain tailored effect. Decidedly the best value ever given at $5.00. All sizes.

At $5.98 Fine Chiffon Panama Dress Skirts in black, navy blue and brown, in three elegantmer models plain or trimmed with silk and silkcloth. Lengths equal to some we've seen at $8.50. All sizes.

THE VOILE AT $6.50 is one of the most extraordinary values we have ever seen. Skirt is fine and wiry. SEE ILLUSTRATION. THE PANAMAS—Black chiffon finish. Four beautiful models—one plaited or corded, one satin and silk-bound and buttons. All sizes.

Fine Black Voile Skirts

At $8.75 Black Voile Skirts of exquisite and high quality; entirely new trimming effects—three are shown in the picture, and four more in the above cut. All sizes.

At $10.00 Hand Finished Voile—one is the elaborately corded model, and the combination of satin folds and braids. Other Black Voile Skirts at $12.50, $18.00 and $20.00.

Women's Spring Suits, $11.50

PAUL M'RAE TO RETURN TO THE LEGISLATURE

His County's Turn to Rise on the Cumberland-Buckingham See-Saw.

Paul McRae, who represented Buckingham and Cumberland counties in the house of delegates four years ago, today made the decision announcement of his candidacy for the next legislature.

Mr. McRae came to RICHMOND early in the year to engage in the practice of the Masonic grand lodge. He conferred with friends in Buckingham and Cumberland counties, and other parts of the district yesterday, and the announcement of his candidacy is the result of this conference.

Cumberland and Buckingham counties are now represented in the lower branch of the legislature by Messrs. Ellett and Bell. It is understood, will be a candidate for re-election. It is a time-honored custom in Virginia politics for representative counties for the legislature alternately, a Cumberland man being elected for one term and a Buckingham man for the next. The number of counties in the district is considered unfavorable to the Democratic party in two consecutive terms, and this custom has also asserted from time immemorial.

Mr. McRae's wife is Mr. McRae's cousin. Both are graduates of the university of Virginia.

STOMACH TROUBLE—INDIGESTION.

Make up your mind after reading this that you are going to get rid of your stomach troubles for good.

You can do it. You can digest it. All that is needed is to give nature the assistance she needs. Do not attempt to choose to remove the cause by taking solids, alkalies and mixes which turn food into poisonous gas and disagreeable eructations.
